

*Opportunities and solutions to success:
CNAP and Food Policy Councils*

COMMUNITY
FOOD & JUSTICE
COALITION

V. Armando Davis, Executive Director

PANQue Presentation
June 3, 2013

Community Food and Justice Coalition food for people, not for profit

CFJC is a coalition of individuals and organizations that believe access to healthy food is a basic human right.

Why are we here?

We all want these things and have a demanding healthy vibrant, successful community

Emergency - The economic crisis has affected individual and families at the same time as food prices, school breakfast and lunch programs, community gardens, food banks, food justice programs, community food programs, community food programs, etc.

Emergency - we believe we have a demand for food that is not met by the current system

CFJC believes that the success requires community participation in the creation of food systems that are sustainable and equitable and are the foundation for food justice.

policy v. Policy

- Different meanings of policy
- Examples: dress code and workplace behavior v. policies that allow for the conversion of vacant lots to urban edible gardens

Nourishing Action

• Topic 4: Using a Socio-ecopic Approach to Frame Food Systems: Policies and Agriculture Food Systems: Policies and Agriculture (1000 624-100-100)

Report Back

- What, if anything, surprised you?
- What did you learn?
- What insights and strategies can you use in your daily work?
- Name the kind of partnerships that are key to your success.

Closing

- What are your takeaways?
- What, if any, follow-up would you like from this presentation?
 - Regarding FPC/FSAs
 - Partnerships and Collaborations

